

SQL - SQL is a standard language mainly used for accessing and manipulating database. Therefore it is mainly used at the data science field.

Go - Go is a programming language designed by Google, syntactically similar to C but with other advanced features.

Swift - swift is a language designed by apple, it is built based on objective-c complementing the weakness of it. It is an easy language to code however, it is only available at limited environment

R - is an open source language mainly used for statistical computing and data analysis and visualization.